Course Description

Who is Jesus Christ for us today? This course will explore a number of contextual theologies, including the Black Christ, the feminist Christ, the womanist Christ, the Asian Christ, the Asian feminist Christ, the Latin@ Christ, the queer Christ, and the disabled Christ. This course will also explore the intersections of postcolonial and queer theory with contemporary christological reflection.

Specific Learning Goals

- Obtain a general familiarity with contemporary christologies from various global contexts.
- Read and critically assess primary theological texts from a variety of theological voices.
- Construct a christology from the student’s own social location.
- This course will honor multicultural worldviews, respect the contributions by multiple voices, and be taught with a commitment to anti-racism.

Course Requirements

30% Attendance and active participation in class
30% Weekly posts on Blackboard
10% In-class “creative” presentation
30% Constructive christological paper, 10-12 pages (shortened version of 2-3 pages presented in class on April 27, 2011; full paper due via email by Monday, May 2, 2011, for graduating students, and by Monday, May 16, 2011, for all other students)

1. Weekly Posts on Blackboard

No later than 11:59 p.m. on each Tuesday prior to a class session, post on Blackboard one paragraph for each of the following three questions:

- What in the readings surprised and/or excited you the most and why?
- What in the readings troubled and/or upset you the most and why?
- What in the readings would you like to see covered in class for clarification or further discussion and why?

2. In-Class “Creative” Presentation

Each student will make a presentation to the class of no more than five minutes about a given week’s readings. Creativity is highly encouraged, whether it is the use of handouts, liturgy, art, music, video, dance, and/or other forms of media.
3. Constructive Christological Paper

For your constructive christological paper, you are asked to write a 10-12 page essay in response to Jesus Christ’s question in Mark 8:29 (“Who do you say I am?”). That is, construct a christology from your own social location and enter into dialogue with at least two of the theologians assigned for this term. You will present a shortened version of your paper (2-3 pages) at the last class on April 27, 2011. For graduating students, the final paper is due via email to pcheng@eds.edu by Monday, May 2, 2011, at 5:00 p.m. ET. For all other students, the final paper is due via email to pcheng@eds.edu by Monday, May 16, 2011, at 5:00 p.m. ET.

Course Grading Criteria

A level -- Submits work on time; proposes creative ideas in class sessions and online discussions; demonstrates critical and creative thinking in the paper. No unexcused absences.

B level -- Submits work on time; shows enthusiasm in class sessions and online posts; demonstrates cogent and coherent thinking in the paper. No more than one unexcused absence.

C level -- Does not submit work on time; shows minimal engagement with the class sessions, online posts, or paper; and/or more than one unexcused absence.

Pass/Fail Option

Those who are taking this course on a pass/fail basis need to inform me by the end of class on Wednesday, February 23, 2011. The pass/fail grading system is:

Pass: B or better
Marginal Pass: B-
Fail: Lower than B-

D.Min. Students (Permission By Instructor Required)

Course work for all Doctor of Ministry (D.Min.) students must demonstrate an advanced understanding of the nature and purposes of ministry, enhanced competencies in pastoral analysis and ministerial skills, and the integration of these dimensions into the theologically reflective practice of ministry. D.Min. students are encouraged to focus their course work on a particular subject germane to their anticipated thesis project.
